

you to day a squire of low degree. I pray you fall too, if you can mocke a Lecke, you can eate a Lecke.

Gow. Enough Captaine, you have astonishd him.

Flu. I say, I will make him eate some part of my lecke, or I will peate his pate foure dayes: bite I pray you, it is good for your greene wound, and your ploodie Coxcombe.

Pist. Must I bite.

Flu. Yes certainly, and out of doubt and out of question too, and ambiguities.

Pist. By this Lecke, I will most horribly reuenge I eate and eate I sweare.

Flu. Eate I pray you, will you haue some more sauce to your Lecke: there is not enough Lecke to sweare by.

Pist. Quiet thy Cudgell, thou dost see I eate.

Flu. Much good do you scald knaue, heartily. Nay, pray you throw none away, the skinne is good for your broken Coxcombe; when you take occasions to see Leekes heereafter, I pray you mocke at 'em, that is all.

Pist. Good.

Flu. I, Leekes is good: hold you, there is a groat to heale your pate.

Pist. Me a groat?

Flu. Yes verily, and in truth you shall take it, or I haue another Lecke in my pocket, which you shall eate.

Pist. I take thy groat in earnest of reuenge.

Flu. If I owe you any thing, I will pay you in Cudgells, you shall be a Woodmonger, and buy nothing of me but cudgells: God buy you, and keepe you, & heale your pate.

Exit

Pist. All hell shall stirre for this.

Gow. Go, go, you are a counterfeit cowardly Knaue, will you mocke at an ancient Tradition began vpon an honourable respect, and worne as a memorable Trophee of predeceased valor, and dare not auouch in your deeds any of your words. I haue scene you gleeking & galling at this Gentleman twice or thrice. You thought, because he could not speake English in the native garb, he could not therefore handle an English Cudgell: you finde it otherwise, and henceforth let a Welsh correction, teach you a good English condition, fare ye well.

Exit

Pist. Doeth fortune play the huswife with me now? Newes haue I that my Doll is dead i'th Spittle of a malady of France, and there my rendezvous is quite cut off: Old I do waxe, and from my wearie limbes honour is Cudgeld. Well, Baud Ile turne, and something leane to Cut-purse of quick hand: To England will I steale, and there Ile steale.

And patches will I get vnto these cudgeld scarres, And i'wore I got them in the Gallia warres.

Exit.

Enter at one doore, King Henry, Exeter, Bedford, Warwick, and other Lords. At another, Quene Isabel, the King, the Duke of Bourgogne, and other French.

King. Peace to this meeting, wherefore we are met; Vnto our brother France, and to our Sister

Health and faire time of day: Joy and good wishes

To our most faire and Princely Cousine Katherine:

And as a branch and member of this Royalty,

By whom this great assembly is contri'd,

We do salute you Duke of Burgogne,

And Princes French and Peeres health to you all.

Fra. Right joyous are we to behold your face,

Most worthy brother England, fairely met,

So are you Princes (English) every one.

Quee. So happy be the issue brother Ireland Of this good day, and of this gracious meeting, As we are now glad to behold your eyes, Your eyes which hitherto haue borne In them againt the French that met them in their bent, The fatall Balls of murthering Basiliskes: The venome of such Lookes we fairely hope Haue lost their qualitie, and that this day Shall change all griefes and quarrels into loue.

Eng. To cry Amen to that, thus we appeare.

Quee. You English Princes all, I doe salute you.

Burg. My dutie to you both, on equall loue.

Great Kings of France and England: hat I haue labour'd With all my wits, my paines, and strong endeours, To bring your most Imperiall Maiesties Vnto this Barre, and Royall interview;

Your Mightinesse on both parts best can witnesse, Since then my Office hath so farre preuayl'd, That Face to Face, and Royall Eye to Eye,

You haue congregated: let it not disgrace me, If I demand before this Royall view,

What Rub, or what Impediment there is, Why that the naked, poore, and mangled Peace,

Deare Nourse of Arts, Plenties, and ioyfull Births, Should not in this best Garden of the World,

Our fertile France, put vp her louely Visage? Alas, shee hath from France too long been chas'd, And all her Husbandry doth lye on heapes,

Corrupting in it owne fertilitye, Her Vine, the merry chearer of the heart,

Vnpruned, dyes: her Hedges euen pleach'd, Like Prisoners wildly ouer-growne with hayre,

Put forth disorder'd Twigs: her fallow Leas, The Darnell, Hemlock, and ranke Fenerary,

Doth root vpon; while that the Culter rusts, That should deracinate such Sauagery:

The euen Meade, that erst brought sweetly forth The freckled Cowslip, Burnet, and Greene Clouer,

Wanting the Sythe, withall vncorrected, ranke; Conceiues by idleness, and nothing reemes,

But hatefull Docks, rough Thistles, Keksyes, Burres, Loosing both beautie and vilitie;

And all our Vineyards, Fallows, Meades, and Hedges, Defective in their natures, grow to wildnesse.

Euen so our Houses, and our selues, and Children, Haue lost, or doe not learne, for want of time,

The Sciences that should become our Countrey; But grow like Sauages, as Souldiers will,

That nothing doe, but meditate on Blood, To Swearing, and sterne Lookes, defus'd Attire,

And euery thing that seemes vnaturall, Which to reduce into our former fauour,

You are assembled: and my speech entreats, That I may know the Let, why gentle Peace

Should not expell these inconueniences, And blesse vs with her former qualities.

Eng. If Duke of Burgonie, you would the Peace,

Whose want giues growth to th'imperfections Which you haue cited; you must buy that Peace

With full accord to all our iust demands, Whose Tenures and particular effects

You haue enchedul'd briefly in your hands.

Burg. The King hath heard them: to the which, as yet There is no Answer made.

Eng. Well then: the Peace which you before so vrg'd, Lyes in his Answer:

France.

France. I haue but with a curfellarie eye O're-glanc't the Articles: Pleaseth your Grace To appoint some of your Councell presently To sit with vs once more, with better heed To re-suruey them; we will suddenly Passe our accept and peremptorie Answer.

England. Brother we shall. Goe Vnckle Exeter, And Brother Clarence, and you Brother Gloucester, Warwick, and Huntington, goe with the King,

And take with you free power, to ratifie, Augment, or alter, as your Wisedomes best Shall see aduantageable for our Dignitie,

Any thing in or out of our Demands, And wee le configne thereto. Will you, faire Sister,

Goe with the Princes, or stay here with vs?

Quee. Our gracious Brother, I will goe with them: Happily a Womans Voyce may doe some good,

When Articles too nicely vrg'd, be stood on.

England. Yet leaue our Cousin Katherine here with vs, She is our capitall Demand, compris'd Within the fore-ranke of our Articles.

Quee. She hath good leaue. Exeunt omnes.

Manet King and Katherine.

King. Faire Katherine, and most faire, Will you vouchsafe to teach a Souldier tearmes,

Sach as will enter at a Ladyes eare, And pleade his Loue-suit to her gentle heart.

Kath. Your Maiestie shall mock at me, I cannot speake your England.

King. O faire Katherine, if you will loue me soundly with your French heart, I will be glad to heare you confesse it brokenly with your English Tongue. Doe you like me, Kate?

Kath. Pardonne moy, I cannot tell wat is like me.

King. An Angell is like you Kate, and you are like an Angell.

Kath. Que dit il que Je suis semblable a les Anges?

Lady. Ouy verayment (sauf vostre Grace) ainsi dit il.

King. I said so, deare Katherine, and I must not blush to asseure it.

Kath. O bon Dieu, les langues des hommes sont plein de tromperies.

King. What sayes she, faire one? that the tongues of men are full of deceits?

Lady. Ouy, dat de tongues of de mans is be full of deceits: dat is de Princeesse.

King. The Princeesse is the better English-woman: faith Kate, my wooing is fit for thy vnderstanding, I am glad thou canst speake no better English, for if thou couldst, thou wouldst finde me such a plaine King, that thou wouldst thinke, I had sold my Farme to buy my Crowne.

I know no wayes to mince it in loue, but directly to say, I loue you; then if you vrge me farther, then to say, Doe you in faith? I weare out my suite: Giue me your answer, yfaith doe, and so clap hands, and a bargain: how say you, Lady?

Kath. Sans vostre honneur, me vnderstand well.

King. Marry, if you would put me to Verses, or to Dance for your sake, Kate, why you vndid me: for the one I haue neither words nor measure; and for the other, I haue no strength in measure, yet a reasonable measure in strength. If I could winne a Lady at Leape, frogge, or by vauing into my Saddle, with my Armour on my backe; vnder the correction of bragging be it spoken, I should quickly leape into a Wife: Or if I might buffet for my
